When Larry Daly took a position at New York City's American Museum of Natural History, he wasn't expecting the exhibits to "come alive" after hours.

That story, of course, is fictional. But there was a time when characters featured in the film were, in fact, alive.

So, if we were to actually meet those characters - when they were alive - what would we see? Where did they live? Why are they still famous?

Let's step back in time ... go to the places where they lived ... and take a look.
