We are now at peace with the world, and it is my fervent prayer that if differences arise between us and other powers they may be settled by peaceful arbitration and that hereafter we may be spared the horrors of war.

William McKinley

2nd Inaugural Address

March 4, 1901

Six months after the popular 25th President of the United States delivered his second inaugural address, he was dead.

McKinley had too much power.

A mere 20 years after Carfield's assassination, and 36 years after Lincoln's, the country—and a President's

His goal of settling disputes by arbitration was honorable. An anarchist named Leon Czolgosz, however, thought

A mere 20 years after Garfield's assassination, and 36 years after Lincoln's, the country—and a President's family—once again endured the horror of assassination.
