

Edgar Allan Poe was born on the 19th of January, 1809, in Boston, Massachusetts. He died on the 7th of October, 1849, in Baltimore, Maryland.

Known for the musical word rhythms which he created in some of his poems - like "The Bells" - Poe is oftencalled one of America's greatest poets.

Poe apparently wrote "The Bells" in 1848 - while he was living in a cottage in The Bronx, one of New York City's five boroughs - as a response to "the bells" which he heard ringing on the campus of nearby Fordham University.

Since the University's Church was built in 1845, it is entirely possible that those were the bells which inspired him. (Today, one of the bells is known as "Old Edgar").

1

Hear the sledges with the bells Silver bells!
What a world of merriment their melody foretells!
How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,
In the icy air of night!
While the stars that oversprinkle
All the heavens, seem to twinkle
With a crystalline delight;
Keeping time, time,
In a sort of Runic rhyme,
To the tintinnabulation that so musically wells
From the bells, bells, bells,
Bells, bells From the jingling and the tinkling of the bells.

ΙΙ

Hear the mellow wedding bells -Golden bells! What a world of happiness their harmony foretells! Through the balmy air of night How they ring out their delight! -From the molten-golden notes, And all in tune What a liquid ditty floats To the turtle-dove that listens, while she gloats On the moon! Oh, from out the sounding cells, What a gush of euphony voluminously wells! How it swells! How it dwells On the Future! - how it tells Of the rapture that impels To the swinging and the ringing Of the bells, bells, bells -Of the bells, bells, bells,

Bells, bells, bells -To the rhyming and the chiming of the bells!

III

Hear the loud alarum bells -Brazen bells! What a tale of terror, now, their turbulency tells! In the startled ear of night How they scream out their affright! Too much horrified to speak, They can only shriek, shriek, Out of tune, In a clamorous appealing to the mercy of the fire, In a mad expostulation with the deaf and frantic fire, Leaping higher, higher, higher, With a desperate desire, And a resolute endeavor Now - now to sit, or never, By the side of the pale-faced moon. Oh, the bells, bells! What a tale their terror tells Of Despair! How they clang, and clash and roar! What a horror they outpour On the bosom of the palpitating air! Yet the ear, it fully knows, By the twanging, And the clanging, How the danger ebbs and flows; Yet the ear distinctly tells, In the jangling, And the wrangling, How the danger sinks and swells, By the sinking or the swelling in the anger of the bells -Of the bells Of the bells, bells, bells, bells, Bells, bells, bells -In the clamor and the clanging of the bells!

IV

Hear the tolling of the bells -Iron bells! What a world of solemn thought their monody compels! In the silence of the night, How we shiver with affright At the melancholy menace of their tone! For every sound that floats From the rust within their throats Is a groan. And the people - ah, the people -They that dwell up in the steeple, All alone, And who, tolling, tolling, tolling, In that muffled monotone, Feel a glory in so rolling On the human heart a stone -They are neither man nor woman -They are neither brute nor human -They are Ghouls: And their king it is who tolls: -And he rolls, rolls, rolls, A paean from the bells! And his merry bosom swells With the paean of the bells! And he dances, and he yells; Keeping time, time, time, In a sort of Runic rhyme, To the paean of the bells: -

Of the bells:
Keeping time, time, time
In a sort of Runic rhyme,
To the throbbing of the bells Of the bells, bells, bells: To the sobbing of the bells: Keeping time, time, time,
As he knells, knells, knells,
In a happy Runic rhyme,
To the rolling of the bells Of the bells, bells, bells To the tolling of the bells Of the bells, bells, bells,
Bells, bells, bells,
To the moaning and the groaning of the bells.

If we counted the number of times the word "bells" appears in this poem, it would amount to ____? Credits:
